

Talks and Training

At Poppy's, we believe everyone should have access to great death care. We offer free, group learning sessions to share our approach with people facing decisions about death, dying and funerals, and anyone who supports them.

Each session is practical, packed with information and includes opportunities to ask questions. The sessions are delivered by our friendly and experienced team, drawing on our work in gently and naturally caring for the dead, and in helping people to plan personal, meaningful funerals.

These sessions will equip you with the information you need to support others to make informed choices that are right for them.

“Interesting, informative and motivating. Having attended today’s session, I feel better-informed [...] I can now describe clearly to families what ‘great care’ looks and feels like. I also feel more confident in informing families about their rights and what to expect. Thank you!”

Azmina Rose,
Marie Curie GP education

Who are Poppy's talks and training for?

- People supporting or caring for others
- Professionals working in health care, end-of-life care or with older people
- Funeral celebrants, faith leaders and death doulas
- Community groups, which may include people thinking about their own funeral wishes

FUNERAL WISHES CONSULTATION

We also offer free sessions for individuals to explore and document their own funeral wishes.

WHAT WE CAN OFFER

Myth-busting talk

This introductory talk opens the doors on death care, including what really happens when someone dies up until their funeral — and what choices are available at every stage.

Talks on specific aspects of death care

We can tailor our talks and training to suit your team or group's needs. For example, we can focus on the practical process after death; why talking about death — openly and honestly — really matters; or how to make more environmentally-friendly funeral choices. Talk to us about what would be relevant for you.

Mortuary visit

Visit our beautiful and light-filled mortuary space to see where great death care happens, meet our team, and ask questions.

Practical experience

Help us care gently and thoughtfully for someone who has died and learn about our approach in action (available to professional teams only).

Contact us on hello@poppysfunerals.co.uk to discuss holding one these sessions for your team or group or read more here.

Poppy's